2:22 – A GHOST STORY

by Danny Robins

One House. One Secret. One Night That Changes Everything.

Jenny is certain something is wrong in their new home. Every night at 2:22 a.m., she wakes to unsettling noises on the baby monitor — sounds she's convinced mean someone, or something, is watching. Her husband, Sam, insists it's nothing more than stress, but when their friends Lauren and Ben arrive for dinner, the conversation spirals into a night of uneasy laughter, sharp disagreements, and revelations that cut far deeper than any of them expect.

As the hours slip by and the tension mounts, secrets surface, loyalties shift, and the boundary between scepticism and belief begins to fracture. With 2:22am drawing ever closer, the four of them are forced to confront what they fear, what they trust, and what they can't explain.

Blending dark humour, psychological unease, and a creeping sense of the supernatural, 2:22 A Ghost Story delivers a gripping, nerve jangling night that leaves audiences questioning what they've seen — and what might be waiting in the dark.

A brilliantly crafted psychological thriller that asks one haunting question:

Do you believe in ghosts?
